
CHARLES FOX GUITARS

Welcome to CHARLES FOX GUITARS' temporary web page. Our full web site is currently under construction, so please bookmark this location and return for more information as it becomes available.

Unfortunately, the former CFox website address, <http://web.archive.org/web/20010714091256/http://www.cfoxguitars.com/>, has been closed without a notice redirecting folks to this new address. We apologize for any inconvenience that you've been put through.

In response to some confusion in the guitar community regarding our current status, here's what's happening:

After 4 years as a corporate subsidiary of a major musical instrument manufacturer, we are again a wholly independent workshop, still crafting the finest possible guitars for our customers worldwide. We continue to produce the innovative CFox line of guitars for our loyal and valued dealers, and we continue to create custom instruments for performing artists, collectors and other discriminating players. In other words, not much has changed. We're here, as always, designing and building for you the best guitars that we know how to make.

The following press release was sent out soon after the announcement of our recent changes, but it won't appear in the media for weeks.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CFOX GUITARS RESTRUCTURES

and director of Charles Fox Guitars, announces the restructuring of the company he leads. CFox Guitars, Inc., the corporate entity that represents that company's venture capital group, has ceased operations as a manufacturer of high-end steel string guitars for wholesale to the trade, with Charles Fox Guitars taking over the facility, equipment and production, effective immediately.

Charles Fox Guitars will continue to build the CFox line of guitars for its network of domestic and international dealers at their Healdsburg, CA facility, home also to the American School of Lutherie and the Guitar Research & Design Center. After a brief period of reorganization, the work of crafting fine guitars will go on without interruption. CFox warrantees are not affected by this change of corporate identity.

"After our initial surprise at this sudden turn of events, we're more inspired every day by the new opportunities that this makes possible," Fox says. "The guitar has entered an exciting new period in its history and we are now more free than ever to play a vital, creative role in its evolution."

During the transition, all CFox dealers are able to communicate with Charles at his personal phone and will be able to field questions, place orders, etc. By mid-July the new Charles Fox Guitars website, <http://web.archive.org/web/20010714091256/http://www.charlesfoxguitars.com/>, will be up and all lines of communication will be open. Charles Fox Guitars is located at 449 Allan Court, Healdsburg, CA 95448. Phone (707) 433-8228

So there it is. Change is rough, and then it's OK. In a very short while our new web site will be up and running, the phones and e-mail will be live again, and life will be good. Stay tuned, and thanks for your patience during this brief transition.

Best Regards,

CFox
