

What the Press say:

Steven DeLaHaye is a self-confessed 'lover, collector and connoisseur of fine vintage guitars. He's spent the last six years'planning, designing, finding and selecting only the finest tonewoods and hardware in the world to produce a series of masterpiece guitars: works of art, built purely for tone, feel, style and luxurious good looks.' Whoah.

The Chrysanthemum 001 is the first in this series and it's been built by Andy Manson whose skills need little introduction. The Model 002, a jumbo acoustic, is already underway and the third masterpiece guitar, a teardrop archtop model, is planned.

The extravagantly curved, semi-acoustic Chrysanthemum, a mix between a Gibson ES-335 and an archtop proper, boasts exotic specs.
